NHB Award for Best Design in Housing

Best Design in Beneficiary Led Construction on a Smaller piece of Land

I. PREAMBLE

National Housing Bank (NHB) has been established under the National Housing Bank Act, 1987 with the mandate to operate as a principal agency to promote housing finance institutions both at local and regional levels and to provide financial and other support to such institutions and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

Aims and Objectives:

NHB has been established to achieve, inter alia, the following:

- To promote a sound, healthy, viable and cost-effective housing finance system to cater to all segments of population and to integrate the housing finance system with the overall financial system.
- To promote a network of dedicated housing finance institutions to adequately serve various regions and different income groups.
- To augment resources for the sector and channelise them for housing.
- To make housing credit more affordable.
- To supervise the activities of housing finance companies based on supervisory authority derived under the Act.

II. DESIGN CONTEXT

- 1.1 Housing is one of the fundamental needs of human beings in organized society. A house is not just a place for seeking shelter but is also a source of financial stability for the family.
- 1.2 Affordable housing has long been a cornerstone of sustainable urban development and social stability. Therefore, the efforts of the policymakers have always been towards providing necessary ecosystem for ensuring adequate housing at minimal cost, so as to maximize home ownership and to accrue the benefit of increased housing activity to the society as a whole.
- 1.3 Every State in the country has its traditional designs for houses which take into consideration the geography, weather, availability of materials locally, and other relevant factors. However, over the years, the importance of the design aspects of housing, particularly in the lower income segments, has diminished owing to rapid urbanization and increasing cost of land, material and labour, with more emphasis being placed on self-design so as to avoid the cost of engaging a professional, resulting in sub-optimal design and construction.

- 1.4 A well-designed and professionally conceived house can not only be completed at minimum cost, but also results in cost savings which might not be available in self-designed houses. Further, design professionals can make optimum use of modern technologies and techniques such as energy-efficient and green housing to further reduce costs in the long term while ensuring that there is no compromise in quality.
- 1.5 One way to ensure that houses, particularly self-constructed houses in the lower income segments, are able to benefit from superior and modern designs without much additional cost, is to provide simple templates which can be easily replicated. Such templates would, therefore, have to be easy to understand, cost effective, and incorporate the latest building material technologies applicable to the particular segment they seek to serve.
- 1.6 One of the activities included in the scope of functioning of the National Housing Bank (NHB) in terms of the National Housing Bank Act, 1987, is “undertaking research and surveys on construction techniques and other studies relating to or connected with shelter, housing and human settlement”.
- 1.7 In alignment with the National Housing Bank’s mission to promote sustainable and inclusive housing development, the Bank has instituted an award for “NHB Award for best design in Housing” to encourage innovation and excellence in housing design.
- 1.8 This award will recognize and encourage innovative, sustainable, and inclusive housing designs that address the challenges of affordability, sustainability, space constraints, adaptability to India’s varied climate/topographical zones while offering quality living conditions.

III. OBJECTIVES OF THE AWARDS:

The awards aim to:

- Promote innovation in beneficiary led construction design on small piece of land.
